The dot plot above the staff shows the frequency of each pitch class (represented by circles) for each measure. The circles are arranged in a grid where the horizontal axis corresponds to the measures and the vertical axis corresponds to the pitch classes (C, D, E, F, G, A, B). Solid black circles indicate a frequency of 1, and open circles indicate a frequency of 0.

The image shows a musical score for guitar, likely for a hymn. It consists of five systems of music. Each system includes a treble clef staff with a key signature of one sharp (F#), a guitar fretboard diagram above the staff, and lyrics below the staff. The fretboard diagrams use black dots for fretted notes and white circles for open strings. The lyrics are: "The life, it's not for comparing things, So I hold both of light and shadow. The rays of stars will bring me to you." The score includes various musical notations such as rests, eighth notes, quarter notes, and half notes, along with fingerings and a capo sign.

This system contains the first 12 measures of the piece. Above the staff, there are 12 groups of five circles each, representing a simplified guitar fretboard. Black circles indicate fretted notes, while white circles indicate open strings. Some groups have a '+' sign above them. The musical staff is in G major (one sharp) and features a melody with various intervals and fingerings indicated by numbers 1-5. The lyrics are: 'Thus the grace I would have will always in my heart.'

This system contains the next 12 measures. It continues the melody and includes a double bar line. The lyrics are: 'Thus the grace I would have will always in my heart.'

This system contains the final 4 measures of the piece, starting at measure 109. The melody concludes with a double bar line. The lyrics are: 'Thus the grace I would have will always in my heart.'
